Miss Alice McGovern, daughter of Mrs. M. McGovern, 326 Cherry street, was united in marriage to Harry Snyder, Rockford, Ill., last night. The ceremony was performed at the First Methodist church by Rev. Dean E. E. Reilly at 8 o'clock.

The bride was attended by Miss Elizabeth Grove of this city. Harry Snyder, brother of the groom, acted as best man. Little Margaret Glenn was flower girl and carried a basket of pink roses and wore a wreath of smilax with pink roses and ribbon.

A gown of white georgette over silk with pearl trimming was worn by the bride. Her veil of tulle was trimmed with a wreath of swansonia and smilax. She carried a shower bouquet of pink roses and swansonia.

The bridesmaid wore a gown of pink georgette with pearl trimming and a picture hat trimmed with pink tips, and she carried an arm bouquet of pink roses.

Immediately after the ceremony a four course breakfast was served to 90 guests at the home of the bride.

After a short wedding trip to Madison, Green Bay and Oshkosh, Mrs. McGovern will reside at 326 Cherry street.

The out of town guests who attended the wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Green, James Hobbs, Galeburg, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Polawski, Mrs. H. Murray and family, Mrs. John E. Olson and Mrs. P. Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock occurred the marriage of Miss Genevieve L. Kealy of the town of Porter to Miles W. Fanning, of the town of Harmony, at St. Joseph's Catholic church, Edgerton. Miss Nichols, cousin of the bride played the wedding march. The bride wore a dress of white silk georgette and net and a large white transparent hat. She was attended by her sister, Miss Zetta Kealy of this city who was groomed in a blue silk gown. The bride carried a large bouquet of white roses, while her bridesmaid, carried a bouquet of carnations and ferns. The groom was attended by Dan Finnane of the town of Rock. Immediately following the ceremony the bride and groom went to the Kealy home where a bounteous wedding breakfast was served, followed by a reception in the evening.

The bride is a teacher in the rural schools of Rock county for the past few years. The groom is a promising young farmer of the town of Harmony.

An entertainment was given Wednesday at the William Hull home for Miss Genevieve Kealy, who will be a June bride. She was given a most luscious shower. Several guests attended from East Porter.

Husbands Will Have to Watch Out in Florida

Tampa, Fla., June 12.—Five hundred Tampa women have formed the Woman's Protective league and say they propose to clean up organized vice by direct action—that they propose to undermine its support.

By the establishment of a sort of moral credit bureau this organization proposes to furnish any woman a confidential report on the "double life" of her husband if she wants one. The inquirer does not even need to give her own name in making the inquiry; she may designate a postoffice box address or any place where an agent of the league may deposit the report on its investigation.

Organizers of the bureau say that 70 of their number have pledged to do the investigating work in the open while the remainder will work in secret.

"So many have such old reprobates for husbands," said one of the chiefs, "they can't work openly because these husbands won't let them. Therefore the league is that if a man has not been walking the straight and narrow path one of the 500 will know about it."

WOMAN HELD FOR FIRE IN RESTAURANT

Dubuque, Ia., June 12.—With the arrest here of Mrs. Sara Swales, owner of a restaurant at Potosi, Wis., where a business block was wiped out by fire Sunday, causing a loss of $60,000, comes an allegation by police officers, that the blaze was started to collect insurance from the restaurant. The woman had moved to Dubuque several months ago, claiming the cafe business was a failure.

Deputy State Fire Marshal Shearer, Madison, Wis., worked on the case and caused the arrest of a confession is alleged to have been signed by Mrs. Swales.

H. S. STUDENTS GET STANDINGS; NEW PLAN

For the first time in the history of the Janesville High school students know before the close of school for the summer vacation the results of the final exams. They know just what subjects they will pursue and even what period these will be recited when school opens in September. If they happen to be graduates they know which of their credits will be credited at the various colleges and universities.

Today is advisory day at the high school. The student body has been divided into groups of 25. Each pupil has an adviser who does out counsel in regard to the course of study, progress, or lack of it, and any other difficult matter which confronts the average high school student. A file containing the names of each faculty adviser and the students which he or she advises is at hand in Prin. G. A. Bassford's office. And right here can be mentioned that this plan has been entirely worked out by the principal, who had blanks printed to record all the data.

Even the new pupils coming from out the city and those from the eighth grades, who will enter high school in the fall have been arranged for. These blanks will, when school opens in September, be kept by the student for his or her own use.

Graduates who wish to receive higher education, know now that they are required to have 16 credits on four years of English, or two years of English and enough language to make up the difference, two years of science, two of mathematics, two of history, and six of civics. Many an anxious moment has been saved the doubtful ones who heretofore were wont to assail the postman every day during the summer vacation for their card of credits. The new plan must have received the hearty approval of the student body if attendance shows approval, for it was a red letter day—not one of them was absent.

Hoosier Biddies Lay Eggs for Rich Huns

(BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.) Indianapolis, Ind., June 12.—Hoosier hens probably are supplying Germans, that is, the remaining disguised aristocratic classes with egg sandwiches which are probably costing from 50 to 75c per. Indiana eggs are being shipped to New York and thence to Switzerland, and there is no doubt that some of them eventually reach Germany, according to Stanley Wyckoff, former Federal Food Administration of Marion county, Indiana.

GIRLS RACE NECK TO NECK FOR HONORS OF HIGH SCHOOL CLASS

Eighty seniors will receive their sheep skins this evening at the Congregational church. The exercises will begin at 8 o'clock.

All of the numbers on the program will be of a somber nature, and the preparation which should be made for the school of life will be impressed upon the graduates.

Malvin Brannon, president of Beloit college, is the chief speaker. He will speak on "The Power of an Idea."

H. H. Faust, superintendent of schools, will give an address which will deal with the merits of higher education.

Of special interest is the remarkable record in scholarship made by Miss Elizabeth Mout and Miss Mildred Smith, who will give the valedictory and the salutatory respectively.

For two years these two classmates have kept neck to neck in scholarship, until the final records were tallied when Miss Elizabeth Mout was declared valedictorian. Each took four subjects, and their records for three and one half years show the total of their standings, Miss Mout 2689 11-12 and Miss Smith 2689 10-12. Both made an average of over 96 for the entire course.

The salutatory address which was delivered last year will be given by Miss Mildred Smith. The valedictory address will be presented by Miss Elizabeth Mout.

High school orchestra, direction of Mrs. Alice Shearer Thomas; invocation, Rev. P. J. Lewis; salutatory, Miss Mildred Smith; piano solo, Miss Willa Penning; valedictory, Miss Elizabeth Mout; introductory address, H. H. Faust, superintendent of schools; address, "The Power of an Idea," Melvin A. Brannon, president of Beloit college; presentation of diplomas, J. T. Hooper, president of board of education; song, class of 1919, direction of Mrs. Alice Shearer Thomas.

MILTON COLLEGE NINE BEATS ALUMNI, 1-0

Milton, June 11.—The annual ball game Tuesday afternoon between the college and alumni nines was one of the most interesting of the season, and well played as the score shows, the alumni winning by a score of 1 to 0. SENATOR DIAL'S WIFE IS NEWEST CAPITAL HOSTESS

Mrs. N. B. Dial.

With a change of administration in congress southern hostesses have lost some political prestige in Washington, but the southern women have always been socially prominent and are always sought after. Mrs. N. B. Dial, wife of the new senator from South Carolina, has just reached the capital, where she is being received in the congressional set with much enthusiasm.

LIEUT. SLADE THRILLS CITY WITH STUNTS

Tracing the rise and progress of the air service from the time it was thought to be a fad to the point where it proved to be a deciding factor in the world's greatest war, he predicted a still greater progress in the next few years. He pointed out the advantage to be gained by Janesville, by constructing a good landing field and keeping up the same. With the government planning a great many trans-continental flights he urged the business interests of this city to send plants and descriptions of their field to all military posts within 500 miles, as well as to the director of air service at Washington, D. C.

Training Is Valuable. He also spoke of the many opportunities which are offered to men who enlist in the air service today. Besides receiving good pay, ranging from $30 per month to $110, the men receive quarters, good food, clothing, medical and dental attention, cheap insurance and many other advantages. In addition training in some of the best paying trades in the country are taught at all the aviation fields. Map making, aerial camera construction, photography, sail making, etc., are also taught. One of the most important professions taught is wireless radio. All sea going vessels, as well as coast-wise steamers carry wireless operators, who get good pay, board and room and an opportunity to see the world. This is thoroughly taught in all aviation schools.

Captain Harrison, before leaving today predicted that in the next few months, many young men desiring better education and better trade training will turn to the army or navy, where they "earn while learning." The new army has been rightly termed "The University in Khaki," he said.

Enlistments may be for one or three years. Recruits are assigned to Chanute Field, Rantoul, Ill. for their preliminary training, after which they may transfer to other posts if they desire. Special qualified men are given training in flying and while engaged in this work, receive 50 percent extra pay.

"A great many men have been commissioned from the ranks and taken as a whole aviation today offers a great many advantages to an ambitious young man," said Captain Harrison.

Land Blocked For Ranches. Rhinelander, June 12.—A meeting of the large land holders of Oneida county was held recently for the purpose of blocking out tracts suitable for sheep and cattle ranches. The Oneida county board of supervisors recently voted an appropriation to advertise this county's advantages to the producers in the west and the action in land blocking is to prepare for any of these ranchers who may want to locate here.

EDGERTON TO SEND LUTHERAN DELEGATES TO STOUGHTON

Edgerton, June 12.—A district convention of the organization known as the Norwegian Lutheran church of America will be held at Stoughton, for the week commencing June 17, at which all of the churches located east of the Mississippi river and affiliated with that organization, will send representatives. The delegates elected by the local Norwegian Lutheran congregation are C. A. Hoen and H. A. Harned; the alternate delegates are F. M. Ellingson and Charles Adolphson.

Persons. The funeral of John Jr., son of Dr. and Mrs. J. Miller, was held at 2:30 this afternoon.

Mrs. Harry Houghton, Stoughton, has been visiting at the home of John Marks.

Mrs. Frank Risdon, Milwaukee, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wray Watson.

There will be a social dancing party held at Indian Ford Friday evening, under the auspices of the Red Cross. The proceeds will be devoted to war relief work.

George Wileman went to Madison to see his mother who is sick at the General hospital.

Gale and Mahlon Ogden called on friends in Janesville last evening.

Mrs. C. McIntyre, Chicago, is spending a few days with her father, F. W. Coon.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Topping, Milwaukee, were Edgerton visitors yesterday.

About 25 friends of Mrs. Herman Becker surprised her at her country home last evening.

Mr. and Mrs. George Griffiths, Milwaukee, are spending a few weeks with Mrs. Griffiths' parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Kruckeberg.

Mrs. Griffiths returned from overseas having served with the 32nd division.

Around the State

Live There 50 Years. Appleton, June 12.—Mr. and Mrs. Henry Schneider celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Tuesday. For 50 years they have lived in the same home on North Division street.

Mr. Schneider is a contractor, who built many of the older Appleton structures.

River Traffic Heavy. Green Bay, June 12.—Traffic on the Fox river at Green Bay is heavier than it has been at this stage of the season in the past according to freight clearance records here. The revival in river freighting is attributed to high rail freight rates and freight congestions.

Experiment on Farms. Green Bay, June 12.—The possible rehabilitation of a world industry, northern agriculture, depends upon an experiment being conducted by experts from the United States department of agriculture and the college of agriculture of the state university on a five-acre plot at Brown county.

Selected flaxseed planted here will determine the suitability of culture of the product in this country.

Eventually leading to the creation of a linen mill center which could take a linen mill out of the condition of the European industry, crippled for years to come by destruction inflicted by the war.

C. B. Crowe, who represents the department of agriculture in the development of the experiment, recently addressed bankers of the northeastern section of the state at Oaksho, urging them to get behind the project, should favorable results be obtained.

Garment workers and linen goods manufacturers are said to be impressed with the department's investigation and are following the development of the experimental plot with interest, in sympathy with a plan which might evolve a New American industry, independent of European dependence of European dy making institutions.

Wants to Buy Plane. Manitowish, June 12.—Rudolph Klemsmeier will probably be the first Manitowish man to own an airplane. Klemsmeier took a ride in one of the planes exhibited at Milwaukee recently and was so taken up with his experience that he has decided to purchase one. He has the intention of purchasing one of the machines which are being sold there by the Canadian government. His brother, Walter, was in the aero service and will operate the machine for him.

Plans Big Fourth. Manitowish, June 12.—This city is making arrangements for the Fourth of July celebration with horse racing, baseball, fireworks and entertainment galore. Purses that are expected to attract many outside horses are to hang up for the matinee races which will be staged.

To Improve Cows. Green Bay, June 12.—The Brown county board has perfected a county wide organization that has as its object the improvement of the county agriculturally and otherwise. Supervisors in the various towns and villages in the county have been directed to appoint a committee consisting of one or two persons from each town or village to represent the county in the selection of the best cow in the county.

The committee so selected will cooperate with the agricultural agent and the county officials in the furtherance of all plans which will benefit the county.

Plan Wide Exhibits. Green Bay, June 12.—Brown county's prize winning grains will be exhibited at five big county, state and national exhibitions, according to plans of the county board. The first showing will be at the Elkhart fair next fall, the second at the Milwaukee state fair, the third at the International Live Stock Exposition at Chicago, the fourth at the Big grain show to be held under the auspices of the State Experiment station in this city and the final showing at the Madison show of the State Experiment association. It is possible that the exhibit may later be sent to the National Corn and Grain show, according to the county board's statement.

Local growers established a reputation at the last state grain show at Madison when Brown county products won a greater percentage of prizes than the products of any other county in the state.

DOG HEROES OF THE WAR TO BE DEMOBILIZED

A group of dogs who have done good service in the war and are now to be taken over by the British police.

The magnitude of the work that has been done by dogs during the war has only come to light recently with the announcement that many of them are about to be demobilized. Dogs acted as message bearers, dispatch runners and often braved, locate wounded men. A great number of the dogs have been trained under the charge of Lieutenant Colonel Richardson and his wife at their dog school at Lyndhurst, in the New Forest, England. Colonel Richardson is known as Major Richardson, famous for his bloodhounds in pre-war days. The group of dogs shown have done good war service and will now be taken over by the police.

News Notes from Movieland

BY DAISY DEAN

The movies have been heralded for some time as the best kind of propaganda and backing for all kinds of good causes, such as war work, Red Cross and the like, and now comes news from the coast that the motion picture industry, or rather one of its greatest men, will help promote ocean flying.

An offer of $50,000 as prize money for aviators who will attempt a flight from Venice, Italy, to Australia was made recently by Thomas H. Ince, motion picture producer.

To the first man to land $35,000 will be paid. To the first aviator attempting the flight, who, although failing to reach Australia, reaches the Hawaiian Islands, $10,000 will be paid. In the event none reaches the Hawaiian Islands, $5,000 will be paid to the one making the best showing.

Tom Ince is the man who made the Triangle film and he is the man who laid out the plants at Inceville, and Culver City, California. He is the man to whom we are indebted for William S. Hart, Charles Ray, Dorothy Dalton and Erich Bennett and a score of others, and perhaps now we shall be indebted to him for a trans-Pacific air flight.

WATCH FOR EUGENE
"The Perfect Lover" is the title of the first production in which Eugene O'Brien will make his bow as a screen star. It is an adaptation of "The Naked Truth," a magazine story by Lavinia Burton Wells, which was selected from a mass of submitted manuscripts as the most suitable for the star.

The producers feel confident that "The Perfect Lover," besides having a strong box office title, will give to Mr. O'Brien a popular role. The story concerns a young man who through outward influences has become a person magnet to which women seem naturally attracted and who gets into serious difficulties because of it.

Rex Beach and Samuel Goldwyn have joined forces and announce a new company, to be known as "The Eminent Authors' Pictures, Incorporated." The concern will have exclusive live rights for a long term of years.

MINIMUM WAGE FOR WOMEN SET AT 22 1/2c PER HOUR
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, June 12.—The industrial commission today announced tentative findings of fact and tentative minimum wage order which are based on the recommendations of the advisory wage board. These tentative findings of fact are to the effect that throughout the state and in all industries minor living wage is 22 1/2 cents per hour.

To enable industry to adjust itself to this basis the advisory wage board recommends that the commission establish a minimum wage rate for experienced women employees who are over 17 years of age of 18 cents per hour. This rate is to be increased to 20 cents per hour Jan. 1, 1920, and to 22 1/2 cents per hour Jan. 1, 1921. At the close of each year the industrial commission is to determine whether there has been any change in the cost of living and to revise the rates prescribed in the tentative order in accordance with these changes.

The tentative order suggested by the advisory wage board provides for a learning period in all industries of six months. During the first three months of this learning period the wages paid shall be not less than 20 percent of the minimum wage rate for experienced employees; during the second and third months of the learning period the wage is to be 90 percent of the rate for experienced employees.

Permit children are to receive in all instances a wage not less than 80 percent of the minimum wage rate for experienced employees. Permit children between the ages of 16 and 17 years of age who have completed the first three months of the learning period are to be paid 90 percent of the minimum wage rate. The board also suggests a provision that permit children who produce the same output as experienced women workers shall receive the same wage.

The board and working are provided by the employer an allowance is made of $5.75 per week for board and $1.75 per week for lodging. This allowance is increased to $7.00 per week for board and $2.00 per week for lodging, and after Jan. 1, 1921, to $4.50 per week for board and $2.00 per week for lodging.

AMERICAN INFLUENCE NEEDED IN ITALY

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Rome, June 12.—American influence in Italy must succeed German influence in the days of American influence in Italy. American implements must replace the Teuton brands. American education must supersede Germanic education. The American must take the place of the German in Italy to impress the Italian mind with Germany's greatness and superiority and German catalogs written in Italian must make room for "how books" written in Italian of American houses in Italy to preach American trade and commerce.

This was the statement of Dr. William Charles W. of the Rockefeller Tuberculosis Foundation, commission serving with the American Red Cross. Dr. W. has conducted an exhaustive investigation of the educational system of Italy, with a view of introducing into the schools the American system of hygienic instruction.

"We have found in the libraries throughout Italy, hundreds of books telling of German methods and German systems. The ramifications which Germany had in Italy to capture Italy's trade were enormous. It brought her results for, until 1915, she had a greater commerce with Italy than any other nation."

Knowledge of America, where almost half a million Italians went annually before the war, of American methods and life are lacking in Italy while works on "German education," can be found in great abundance.

THE HAND OUT.
It being a raw, blustery day in March, the Necks to Nature Club was in full session.

"Say, Tom, d'you ever see that little Spiffmore girl any more?" asked Bob White, by way of opening another conversation.

"No, can't imagine whatever became of the little homely thing."

"I say, boys, Nellie Spiffmore might not have been the raving beauty you fellows fall for, but she certainly had the most beautiful hands in the world," declared Jack Wagonbark.

"What had been in love with her once. Why, her hands were—"

"Speaking of hands," interrupted Colonel Harta Beaton, who had just strolled in for an hour or two.

"Speaking of hands reminds me of the one I held one evening."

For the first time in the history of the Club, everybody was going to stay to listen, for the Colonel had never, in all his wild tales, ever spoken of love or sweetheart; in fact, nothing mushy had ever passed his lips, but now, at last, he was going to unfold some soft tender episode of his thrilling life.

"Yes, said, I held the most beautiful hand I ever saw, bah Jove, I could hardly believe my bally fortune and had to look nineteen times before I think of it, gentlemen, I held a king, queen, jack, ace and ten spot—"

"All of the one suit, don't you know?" And the Colonel smiled reminiscently while the silence continued for five minutes. One could have heard a gum drop.

"Who dealt?" quietly asked Tom Spudds.

Every member snickered audibly.

"Haw-er," the Colonel forced a hearty laugh. "Why, I say Spudds—Wait! Bring me six cocktails—in one big glass!"

And Colonel Harta Beaton walked over to a quiet, unobscured corner to wait for the bracer.

WITH THE WOMEN OF TODAY

With canning time coming on there are probably a lot of women who will be interested in the story of a certain women's club in Quincy, Ill. It is an unusual club, not one of the best-dressed, gossipy-afternoon-tea-cards-for-service. Instead of wearing their new suits and frocks the women often wear costumes or take along their large cover-all aprons.

Mrs. James Riggs, who is president of the club, says this of the founding of the organization:

"Women often wish for an extra pair of hands to help with the large household tasks and the women living in a certain neighborhood in Quincy solved the problem by forming the Co-operative Housekeeping club. The members, each of whom arranges to have some special work for the club to do for her. One member had all the curtains for her new home made for her by the club; another had rag rugs sewed up for rugs, and just now the meetings are being devoted to putting up fruits and vegetables, the latter from the home garden, and this work will probably be the main task throughout the summer months."

Mrs. James Riggs.

several pairs of hands peeling, washing and scalding the fruit and vegetables instead of the one pair the work is done in less than half the time. Mrs. Riggs also claims that while the many hands make light work that such a club can only be successful when confined to no more than 15 members for

U. S. WOMEN AID SERBIA

The American Women's Hospitals, the official welfare agency of the Medical Women's National Association, comprising some 10,000 members throughout the United States, plans to send one fully equipped unit to Serbia and another to Palestine immediately. Dr. Belle Thomas is in charge of the campaign now being conducted by the organization to raise $250,000 which will insure these two units and additional ones as the need arises.

Each unit will be equipped with a mobile hospital of 50 beds; dispensary, laboratory, kitchen, laundry and sterilizer motors; three or four doctors, one dentist, six nurses, 16 ambulances, a chauffeur for each and eight additional motor divers will join the units abroad.

HERE AND THERE

Women workers are scarce because hundreds of them have quit their jobs to get married, because in some instances they are satisfied with places at less pay than men, because housewives who gave up domestic servants during the war are now wanting them back, and the demand for women servants is about four jobs for every servant, and because business in which women can work is increasing.

Most people think that the farm is the birthplace of all gardens, but Mrs. G. S. Bangs Steward of Chicago, who owns and supervises a dozen farms in Iowa, is making a campaign for more gardens on the farms of America. She is chairman of the land service of the Women's National Farm Garden association.

On the surface lines in Manhattan and the Bronx about 400 conductors, ettes are still in service. They are being replaced by men as fast as they quit.

Retailers to Meet

Green Bay, June 12.—The Wisconsin Retail association, composed of all kinds of merchandisers from lumbermen to grocers, will hold its annual convention here August 11, 12 and 13. It is expected over 500 of the leading representatives of the state will be present at the conference. G. E. Spindler of Superior is president of the organization and M. Slattery of Milwaukee is secretary.

A CHANCE TO LIVE

BY ZOE BECKLEY

AN ATTEMPT TO "FORGET" in her recollection of the settlement house Annie longed for diversion in any form that would make her forget. This boisterous party did not appeal to her, but the two girls she called "the boys" were at the factory of the "fun" last night, and the "gr-u-and" time of the night, she thought. Perhaps they did have fun. She must be too particular. What else was there to do except go home? And home—ugh!

Before she realized it she was climbing over a car with the rest, and they were squeezed together the car swayed and bumped them as it flew nearer and nearer the suit-smelling shore.

They didn't go near the shore, though, when they reached "the island." Nobody wanted to look at the sea. They linked arms and joined the surging mass of people walking up and down the paucous thoroughfare called Surf avenue. They chewed gum. They exchanged cheap banter in the current slang and had "jokes" on one another.

The girls, except Annie, were dressed for the occasion, everything they wore being exaggerations of what happened to be in vogue, on the principle that if a drop of perfume were pleasing, a cupful would be more so. "Wide, round hats called 'Merry Widows' were the mode that season. So the factory girls wore them twice as wide as the women on Fifth avenue. They were always collared at the sides, with long, flowing, wavy hair, and with stiff straw edges, which evoked the gales of laughter and more play-slaps. They were pushed and jostled, lost hold of one another and caught on again with shrieks of laughter. They peered into the free shows where groups were sitting at sloppy tables drinking beer and listening to fat-soubrrettes who danced glibly and sang worse. They rode on a roller-coaster, the girls clinging frantically to the boys they paired off with, and screaming with excitement at the breath-taking dips. The youths after a discreet withdrawal to discuss finances, purchased "hot dog" sandwiches and beer all around. And there was more hilarity than ever after that.

Annie tried to "keep up" with the rest and feel she was having a good time. She laughed a great deal and managed by hook and crook to keep several of the lads interested enough to fend off that most dreaded of fates to the young—being a wallflower.

Accidentally she caught sight of a clock. Both its hands were on 12. "Midnight!" she shrieked. "How could it be that late? The hot streets and alleys were still crowded. The lights still blazed, the merry-go-rounds blared their hideous disc "barkers" for the nickel shows croaked their ballyhoos with unimpaird vigor.

Annie plucked one of her girl friends by the sleeve and in a frightened undertone questioned the host. She was almost wondering what her worried mother would say when she reached home, for she usually got in from the settlement house before ten.

"Oh, forget the time! Who's worrying about tomorrow morning? Hey, Fred, your lady friend here is crying to go home."

"Fred" took Annie engagingly by the elbow and with his red face bent close to hers said: "What'samatter, ain't you having a good time? Don't be a killjoy. You stick to me and you'll wear di'monds!"

Annie thought of the man who had tried to "pick her" on the street, and had used the same expression. She felt suddenly weary and sick and frightened at everything. She wanted to get away. She must get away, and home—ugh!

COOL SUMMER-GOWN OF CRISP ORGANDY.

By ELOISE

Organdy, the rage of last summer, is still with us. Even though almost everybody has discovered that it is one of the most difficult fabrics to launder. Last year white was the prevailing color, but this year pale pinks and blues as well as greens and beautiful orchid shades are the favored colors. Every one under 30 has an organdy frock and many over 30, the kiddies and flappers have more than one and the young woman who expects to go vacationing or attend garden parties will surely own at least one dainty frock of this material regardless of the hardships the laundress will endure in trying to wash it.

This smart frock, cut on the newest lines, is made of peachblow organdy. A daintily embroidered panel forms a gilet in the front. A shawl collar of white organdy extends about the waist, forming a belt and sash. The sleeves are short, reaching to the latest dictates of Paris, and have wide white cuffs. The skirt is long, and flared, and has an elastic band at the hips. The Watteau shaped hat of chapeau to wear with a demure organdy frock.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am 20 years old and have a number of young men friends. Some of them I like to go with and others I do not. It is hard for me to say no or to make excuses when some one asks for a date and so I am always doing something I really don't want to do.

How can I get rid of the young men I do not enjoy? EDITH H.

You will have to learn to say no. As long as you are cordial and accept the company of young men you cannot expect them to understand that they are not wanted. I know it takes courage to be firm. You must learn, however, to save your time for people who are interesting and a benefit to you.

THE WISHING PLANE

While the airplane was speeding toward the great forts at Verdun, Captain Bravo told the little folks how tons and tons of steel and concrete had been used in building up rows and rows of great forts around this city and how the Germans had tried during the war to batter down these forts and take the city, but had failed.

The battle lasted for many weeks. The children could hardly wait until they reached the city to see the forts and the guns in them. The airplane under the ground and they stood only a few feet above the earth.

The guns were built in little mound shaped houses of concrete and steel so that the gunners could not be seen or hurt while firing the guns. The less a big shell should hit that part of the fort.

Captain Bravo led his friends down into one of the forts, which was all but deserted. There were one or two soldiers, however, resting there, and one of them was kind enough to tell Captain Bravo and the children and Lady-dear all about the guns and interesting stories about the attempt to take the fort. He showed them the great cave-like rooms back of the guns where shells enough to last for weeks were stored before the battle began, and how the shells were moved by machinery from the storerooms to the guns. Jack wondered how the men who fired the cannon could stand it long in the terrible noise and fumes caused by the firing of the guns. He asked the soldier, "We couldn't stand it long, but we kept at it until we dropped, and then the men took our places while we were taken out to rest," said the soldier.

He led the little folks and their friends from one gun to another through the maze of passageways which had been dug underground. What was so many things to interest him, it was little wonder that Jack called to notice that the rest of the party had left one of the big guns and had entered one of the many tunnels leading from there to other parts of the fort.

When he turned around from looking along the barrel of the giant cannon, he found himself alone.

He looked into two or three of the tunnels leading away from the gun, and couldn't see a soul. He listened, and couldn't hear a thing. Then he did just what you or I might do, he ran wildly along one of the tunnels, hoping that he had taken the right one and that he would find Lady-dear and Jane and the Captain. Pretty soon he came to another gun with more interesting stories leading away from it. By the time he had looked into these tunnels he became lost altogether and couldn't even decide which passageway he had gone through, so he didn't know how to get back where he had lost the folks. You will have to wait a while to find out what happened to Jack after this.

School Census Grows. Green Bay, June 12.—Comparison of the recently completed school census for 1918 with the school census of 1910 shows by using the ratio of the school census of 1910 to the population of the city at that time, an increase of over 8,500 in the population of Green Bay, now estimated at 29,767. It is possible that before the taking of the 1920 census, annexations will be made to the city that will add 2,000 to its population. Well settled districts now lying outside the city limits are enjoying all of the benefits of residents of the city proper.

The League of Nations was unanimously endorsed by the general Federation of Women's Clubs in session at Asheville, N. C., and announcement of the action has been cabled to President Wilson.

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a married woman 26 years old and have been married four years. My husband was married before, his wife obtaining a divorce on the grounds of cruel and inhuman treatment. And so I have to take what I get for my lot. He hits me when he gets angry.

Every time I say a word to him about the way things are going he threatens me and calls me terrible names, so that I often cry. Most of the children's clothes I have to make over out of what the neighbors give me. We have two boys, one three years and one 14 months.

What shall I do? Leave him? And what shall I do with the children? If it were not for them I should go at once. He always tells me to go, as he doesn't care for me, but he won't offer any suggestion as to where he would like me to go.

MRS. E.

It will be best for you to present your case to the judge of the probate court. Write to him, or preferably, see him in person. He will have your case investigated and will advise you about separation and means of supporting the children.

"Do not delay in this matter. Your child is affected by his present environment and for his sake you should bring about a change as quickly as possible."

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have seen a really fine fellow around town and have been seeing him for quite a while. I would like to meet him, but nobody seems to know him. How can I meet him? RAGING.

It is useless for you to try to meet the man. If you pursue him he will

HEALTH TALKS

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

FISHER AND FISK ON "COLDS"

Professor Irving Fisher (the Yale) and Doctor E. L. Fisk, the author of a book called "How to Live," give a great risk with the views of the health authorities of eminent repute—the Hygienic Institute Board, Life-Extension Institute—come out right blunt and bold on the myth of colds. What they say about the influence of gentle salutary drafts has many O. K. and no doubt Chairman William Howard Taft, for the popular conception that a draft will cause a "cold" is "greatly exaggerated"—that is just what we are told. And the best of friends a seeker after health can cultivate is a gentle draft—GEN. T. E. DRAFT, be sure to get that through your pipe.

All this in Chapter One in the very last edition, but not so fast, for Chapter Seven introduces genuine contribution.

"After one has actually caught cold the rules above given for preventing a cold are in most particulars reversed. One should then avoid drafts."

Now, isn't that aggravating?

It amounts to the same old thing: "Have plenty of fresh air, but don't let it take you cold." Or, for variation: "Secure good ventilation—but exclude drafts." Certainly, my darling daughter, you may go out in a swim—but don't go near the water.

You remember the old schoolbook story of the boy who tried to turn the grindstone for foxy-grandpa—until the last bell rang, and then the young rascal got a good scolding from grandpa. Well, foxy grandpa is still playing that game on the public, and the only trouble with Professor Fisher and Doctor Fisk and the ninety-odd members of the advisory board and Mr. Taft and the other eminent gentlemen of the Institute is that they can't decide just what to do about the question of taking

A TASTE FOR READING.

"If I were to pray for a taste which should stand me under every variety of circumstances and be a source of happiness and cheerfulness to me through life and shield against its ills, I would think I might go amiss, and the world thrown upon me, it would be a taste for reading. Give a man that taste and the means of gratifying it and you can hardly fail to make him happy. You make him a denizen of all nations, a contemporary of all ages."—Herschel.

A college education is a splendid thing to have. Whether it helps or not, it does give a background which enriches all the rest of one's life. And yet, if I had to choose for a child of mine whether he were to have a college education or the habit of reading, I think I should choose the latter. Of course, I should want him to have a good education, but I would rather have him read intelligently, be a better educated than three-quarters of the college men I know.

In a recent magazine article on Napoleon, a fact not generally played about that great man is brought out. He was from his earliest youth a tremendous reader. In his youth he derived himself of proper clothes and sufficient food to get the money to buy books, and having brought them together in triumph to his rooms and spent his happiest hours with them. "Such," he writes, "were the joys and disquisitions of my youth."

Not Only How Much But What.

Of course what one reads is a factor in the result as well as how much. Even if one reads nothing but mediocre novels one cannot help getting something out of them but how much less than if one read intelligently and broadly. Nor do I mean by that one should read only serious things. Fiction has its place just as sweets have in the diet. But then our magazines and newspapers are so crammed with interesting and helpful articles how anyone can (as so many people do) stick wholly to stories, I cannot understand.

Henry Ward Beecher has an interesting passage on how to read. "I read for three things," he says. First, to know what the world has done during the past 24 hours and is about to do today; second, for the knowledge that I specially want in my work; and third, for what will bring my mind into a proper mood.

How Reading Lessens One's Chances of Being Unhappy.

I think one ought to add a fourth to that general information that is both interesting and occasionally valuable to have. Since Beecher's work was humanity, its scope humanity wide, I suppose he did not realize that his second purpose would embrace much more with him than with some men.

When a man is bored he is unhappy; when he is interested he is, it not happy, at least not unhappy, and the more one knows of every sort, the more interesting a place the world becomes and hence the less chance one has of being unhappy.

BEVERAGES FOR SUMMER.

Elderberry Wine.—To every quart of berries add three quarts rain water; let it ferment for 10 days, then strain off juice, add three pounds sugar; let it ferment another 10 days; then bottle it, but do not cork it up. Strain it through a cloth before you bottle it.

Along about Christmas you can bottle it over and cork it up.

Lemon Pop.—Place two ounces ginger root (crushed in pot, add two pounds sugar and three quarts boiling water, juice of seven lemons and two ounces of cream of tartar. Let stand until lukewarm, then add half cake yeast dissolved in half cup of water; stir well.

Cover and let stand eight hours in warm room; strain through flannel bag and bottle. Set bottles in a cool place and put on ice as required for use.

Dandelion Wine.—Two quarts or a little more of dandelion blossoms. Pour over them one gallon boiling water; let stand 24 hours, then put through a cheesecloth and put in a crock with a piece of dry toast floating on top, on which place a cake of compressed yeast. Add two lemons and two oranges sliced.

Leave about a week, then lift off bread and strain again through cloth. Put in a jug, and add three pounds granulated sugar, and then it starts to ferment.

Always keep it filled up so it will bubble out into a pan placed under the jug. Strain it again when through working, put it back into jug, put cork on tightly until all gas is out, then clarify with white of egg and bottle.

This is of excellent flavor, and very clear, when made according to directions.

CHAPTER IV.

In Which Tom Catches an Enchanted Fish, and Discovers the Dangers of Treasure Hunting.

The morning was a little overcast, but a brisk northeast wind soon set the clouds moving as it went humming in our sails, and the sun, coming out in its glory over the crystalline waters, made a fine flashing world of it, full of exhilaration and the very breath of youth and adventure, very uplifting to the heart.

Nassau looked very pretty in the morning sunlight, with its pink and white houses nestling among palm trees and the masts of its spongy schooners, and soon we were abreast of the picturesque low-lying fort, Fort Montague, that Major Bruce, nearly two hundred years ago, had such a time building as a protection against pirates entering from the east end of the harbor. It looked like a veritable piece of the past, and set the imagination dreaming of those old days of Spanish galleons and the black flag, and brought my thoughts eagerly back to the object of my trip, those doubloons and pieces of eight that lay in glittering heaps somewhere out in those island wildernesses.

Then Tom came up with my breakfast. The old fellow stood by to serve as, when drawing my attention to the sun bursting through the clouds, he said, "The poor man's blanket is coming out, sah!"—phrases in which there seemed a whole lot of pathos to me.

Stops Seborrhea—Grows Healthier Hair

Presently, when breakfast was over, and I stood looking over the side into the incredibly clear water, in which it seems hardly possible that a boat can go on floating, suspended as she seems over gleaming gulfs of liquid space, down through which at every moment it seems she must dizzily fall.

As Tom and I gazed down, lost in those rainbow depths, I heard a voice at my elbow saying with peculiarly sickening unctuous:

"The wonderful works of God."

It was my unwelcome passenger, who had silently edged up to where we stood. I looked at him, with the question very clear in my eyes as to what kind of disagreeable animal he was.

"Precisely," I said, and moved away. I had been trying to feel more kindly toward him, wondering whether I could summon up the decency to offer him a cigar, but "the wonderful works of God" finished me.

"Hello! captain," I said presently, pointing to some sails coming up rapidly behind us. "What's this? I thought we'd got the fastest boat in the harbor."

"It's the Susan B., sponger," said the captain.

The captain was a man of few words.

The Susan B. was a rakish-looking craft with a black hull, and she certainly could sail. No doubt it was pure imagination, but I did fancy that I noticed our passenger signal to them in a peculiar way.

I confess that his presence was beginning to get on my nerves, and I was ready to get "edgy" at anything or nothing—an irritated state of mind which I presently took out on George the engineer, who did not believe his hulking appearance, and who was forever letting the engine stop and taking forever to get it going again. One could almost have sworn he did it on purpose.

My language was more forcible than classical—had quite a piratical flavor, in fact; and my friend of "the wonderful works of God" looked up on George with a deprecating air. Its effect on George was nil, except perhaps to further deepen his sulks.

And this I did notice, after a while, that my remarks to George seemed to have set up a certain sympathetic acquaintance between him and my passenger, the shakily deckhand being apparently taken in as a humble third. They sat forward, talking together, and my passenger read to them, on one occasion, from a piece of printed paper that fluttered in the wind.

The captain was occupied with his helm, and the thoughts he didn't seem to feel the necessity of sharing; a quiet, poised, probably stupid man, for whom I could not deny the respect we must always give to content, however simple. He was a sailor, and I don't know what better to say of a man.

So for companionship I was thrown back upon Tom. I felt, too, that he was my only friend on board, and a vague feeling had come over me that within the next few hours I might need a friend.

"Are we going too fast for fishing, Tom?" I asked.

"Not too fast for a barracouta," said Tom; so we put out lines and watched the stretched strings, and listened to the sea. After a while Tom's line grew taut, and we hauled in a five-foot barracouta.

"Look!" said Tom, as he pointed to a little writhing eel-like shape, about nine inches long, attached to the belly of the barracouta.

"A sucking fish!" said Tom. "That's good luck," and he proceeded to turn over the poor creature and cut from his back, immediately below his head, a flat inch and a half of skin lined and stamped like a rubber sole—the device by which he held on to the belly of the barracouta much as the circle of wet leather holds the stone in a schoolboy's sling.

"Now," he said, when he had it clean and neat in his fingers, "we must hang this up and dry it in the northeast wind; the wind is just right—nor-nor-east—and there is no mascot like it, specially when—" Old Tom hesitated, with a slyly innocent smile in his eyes.

"What is it, Tom?" I asked.

"Well, sir, I meant to say that this particular part of a sucking fish, properly dried in the northeast wind, is a wonderful mascot—when you're going after treasure."

"Who said I was going after treasure?" I asked.

"Aren't you, sah?" replied Tom, "asking your pardon."

"Let's talk it over later on, when you bring me my dinner, Tom."

Later, as Tom stood, serving my coffee, I took it up with him again.

"What was that you were saying about treasure, Tom?" I asked.

"Well, sir, what I meant was this: that going after treasure is a dangerous business. It's not only the living you're to think of—" Here Tom threw a careful eye forward.

"The crew, you mean?"

"He nodded."

"But it's the dead too."

"The dead, Tom?"

"Well, sir, there was never a buried treasure yet that didn't claim its victim. Not one or two either. Six or eight of them, to my knowledge—and the treasure just where it was for all that. I don't say it sounds all foolishness, but it's true for all that. Something or other'll come, mark my word—just when they think they've got their hands on it: a hurricane or a tidal wave or an earthquake. And—well, the ghost laughs; but the treasure stays there all the same."

"The ghost laughs?" I asked.

"Oh! of course; didn't you know every treasure is guarded by a ghost? He's got to keep watch there till the next fellow comes along to relieve sentry duty, so to speak. He doesn't give it away. My no! He doesn't give it away. The minute someone else is killed, coming looking for it, then he's free—and the new ghost has got to go on sitting there, waiting for ever so long till someone else comes looking for it."

"But what has this sucking fish got to do with it?" And I pointed to the red membrane already drying in Tom's hand.

"Well, the man who carries this in his pocket won't be the next ghost," he answered.

"Take good care of it for me, then, Tom," I said, "and when it's properly dried let me have it. For I've a sort of idea I may have need of it, after all."

And just then old Sailor, the quietest member of the crew, put up his head

"Are we going too fast for fishing, Tom?" I asked.

"Not too fast for a barracouta," said Tom; so we put out lines and watched the stretched strings, and listened to the sea. After a while Tom's line grew taut, and we hauled in a five-foot barracouta.

"Won't you take another piece of pie?"

The minister laughed. "Well Johnny," he said, "since you are so polite, I will have another."

"Good!" said Johnny. "Now, ma, remember your promise. You said it was necessary to cut into the second pie I could have another piece!"

"Fighting Bob" Evans being in the city one Sunday morning went to church wearing an ordinary civilian suit. Arriving early he took a good seat, moving to the further end. Later another man came, looked sharply at him and sat down. Soon he passed a paper to the intruder on which were these words:

"Sir, are you aware that I pay $500 a year for the exclusive use of this pew?"

Evans looked at it, took out his card and wrote in reply:

"My dear sir, you pay a damn sight too much. Robley D. Evans, Captain U. S. Navy."

Admiral Bradley Fiske was talking in New York about a naval critic. "This naval critic," he said, "reminds me of Swenson."

"What struck Swenson?" a man asked at the club. He failed in medicine, he failed in the law and he failed in the ministry, and now he's moved into a $2,500 flat in Riverside drive.

"Well, you see," said another man, "Swenson has started to write magazine articles of 'Why Men Fail,' and he made a mighty good thing of it. Qualified, you know."

Boy Scouts Make Good in War

Dan Board, head of Boy Scouts, left, and James C. Chu, Chinese, Boy Scout up to mail box in New York City. Chu can mail letter to president of China, urging him to encourage Boy Scout movement.

New York, June 9.—The many and varied activities of the boy scouts during the war have seriously interfered with the routine of the order, but new scouts have been admitted to an extent which has doubled its membership since the spring of 1917. The main trouble is that there has developed a dearth of men—scoutmasters and committee men—because so large a number went into the army or the navy. It takes one man for every eight boys in the organization. Patrols of eight boys each make a troop of scouts, and each troop has its scoutmaster and three committee men, as well as an assistant scoutmaster, often a graduate of the troop.

Thousands of scouts enlisted in the war and many more scout-trained boys were called to the colors. One could never tell when one of them would appear in our land or war or force. They were everywhere, and always their training, under the motto, "Be Prepared," had made them ready for an emergency.

Embarked on First Shell. The first shell fired at the Germans by Yankee artillery had a boy scout emblem posted on its point. W. S. Pritchard, scoutmaster of a troop in Birmingham, Ala., was a member of the organization in New York for the time being, a New York city scout, has been flying with the army of occupation since November 11. Fifteen of 20 men left the national office for the organization in New York for the time being, a New York city scout, has been flying with the army of occupation since November 11. Fifteen of 20 men left the national office for the time being, a New York city scout, has been flying with the army of occupation since November 11.

The boys of the organization have doing their part at home, while their older comrades fought in France. In the five Liberty loan campaigns they sold about $350,000,000 in bonds, to nearly two and a half million subscribers. More than 100,000 of the boys earned the treasury department medal for at least ten individual subscriptions. Two months ago the scouts passed the $500,000,000 mark in sales of war savings stamps.

Aided in Many Ways. Locating black walnut trees for gunstocks, collecting fruit pits for gasmask carbon, distributing more than 50,000,000 pieces of war literature at the request of the president, carrying on 12 thousand war gardens and war farms, giving service to the united war work committee, and numerous other national organizations, as well attending church, going to the B. W. Snyder home and taking dinner and spending the afternoon.

LEAGUE CONTRIBUTIONS EXEMPTED FROM TAX

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.) New York, June 12.—Individuals who contributed to the league to enforce peace may have such contributions deducted from gross incomes in income tax returns according to a ruling received here today from Daniel C. Roper, commissioner of internal revenue. Commissioner Roper decided that the league qualifies as "a corporation organized and operated exclusively for educational purposes" under a section of the revenue act of 1918.

In announcing this ruling today, the national headquarters of the league said that it would effect more than 4,000 persons in every state of the union. Contributors to the league number more than 6,500, the average individual contribution being $33.

The ruling by Commissioner Roper says that the league to enforce peace is engaged through Mr. Taft, Dr. A. Lawrence Lowell and others in educating the people of the league of nations and contributions or gifts made within the taxable year to corporations organized and operated exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, or educational purposes may be deducted in computing the tax.

Wildcats for Mascots in Firemen's Quarters

(BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.) Los Angeles, Cal., June 12.—Three young wildcats today have homes in the Long Beach fire department. They are being trained as mascots, and they will be permanent additions—that is, if they behave. Wise men on wildcats are not optimistic over the innovation, declaring the docile little "kittens" just naturally develop bad dispositions when they change from a milk to a raw meat diet.

F. D. Holland, fireman, found the "kittens" in his mountain cabin, near Cajon Pass, north of San Bernardino, on a recent visit. The mother, a full-grown wildcat, ran from the building as he approached it.

Blackhawks Will Meet Madison Independents Here Sunday

By George McManus.

FLEMING IS SLATED TO HEAVE 'EM

(By KID BIFF)

After two weeks' idleness, Manager Skinner Doran and his crew of Blackhawk players will get into action again Sunday at the fair grounds. The Madison Independents will be the opponents of the thirdwarders this time.

Arrangements for the game were completed today by Manager Doran and the fair grounds. The affair will take off at 3 o'clock with Pete Fleming pitching for the Hawks and McCue as his battery mate. Culver is slated to leave for the invaders with Swanson doing the receiving work.

The Hawks will present their usual line-up with Doran, the rangy slugger standing on the initial bag, Sisk, full at short, and Cuddy Butters on third. The rest of the crew will be, Smith, Cutts, Marshall and Butters.

Little is known of the strength of the Independents, the local officials today, that they need not fear but what they would furnish some tough proposition. That Madison is the home of good ball players, falls here are willing to swear after seeing Moose Kleinheinz and Roy Barrigan perform on the first sack for the Janes.

The Madison line-up will be: Javoriski, McCann as E. Brainerd, Tipple of Butler 1b, Park 2b, Dahlem cf, Swanson c, Culver p, E. Deveraux, utility.

Jack Fleming will umpire the fray. All the grass in the outfield has been cut down and this ought to speed the game up a bit. Fleming is going strong, after his victory over Footville for Egerton last Sunday, and is going to display a good amount of stuff against the Capital City outfit.

JANES TO PRACTICE TOMORROW EVENING

Unless rain prevents, the Janes will practice at the fair grounds tomorrow night at 8:30. Manager James A. Murphy stated today. He wants every man on the job early.

They will go through a stiff workout in preparation for the game with Albany at Albany, Sunday.

Kansas City Will Have Real Fight Bill, July 4

(By Associated Press)

Kansas City, Mo., June 12.—In a boxing carnival here July 4, Mike Gibbons of St. Paul and Jeff Smith of New York, will meet in a ten-round bout, and Johnny Dundee and Harvey Thorpe will mix in a 15 round affair.

Abe Attell, former featherweight champion, will referee.

Besides the two main attractions there will be a ten round go between Charley Aronson, a Rainbow division fighter, and Joe McGowan, champion lightweight at the Great Lakes naval training station, Jack Sheehan, a welterweight "champ" of the 55th division is scheduled to meet Jack Rush in an 8 round bout.

"Doc" Stewart Resigns As Coach at Nebraska

(By Associated Press)

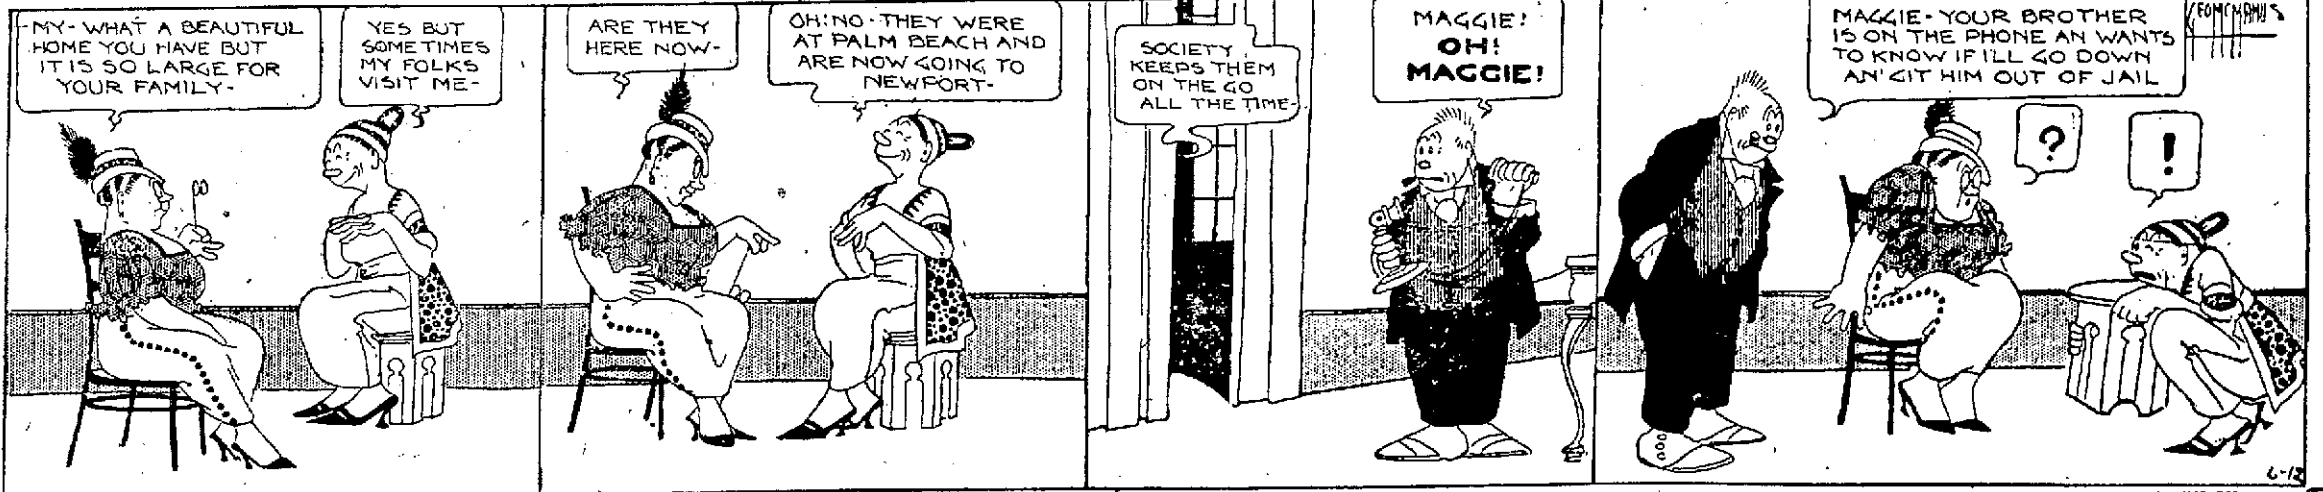

Lincoln, Neb., June 12.—Edward J. ("Doc") Stewart, director of athletics and head coach of football, basketball and track of the University of Nebraska, has tendered his resignation, effective September 1.

Stewart has been at the University of Nebraska for three years. He was a coach at Mount Union College, Allegheny college and Purdue.

The department of athletics soon is to be enlarged, and when a new director is appointed he will be given an increased staff of assistants. Before the end of the next school year, the department will occupy a new $40,000 gymnasium.

Canteens in which the rural school children of England may have their daily luncheon are being opened in all parts of the country.

THREATENS SUIT TO STOP DEMPSEY BOUT

(By Associated Press.)
Toledo, June 12.—John J. Reister, a former manager of Jack Dempsey, has threatened to bring suit here in an attempt to restrain Dempsey from meeting Jess Willard here July 4, unless he is paid $10,000, which amount it was said today, Reister claims is due him.

Reister made known his demands to Tex Rickard, promoter of the contest. Ray J. Cannon, Milwaukee, who has opposed several suits filed by Reister, is scheduled to arrive today Kearns said, to fight the threatened suit.

Willard and Dempsey are reaping a rich harvest as a result of the big crowds which continue to pay to visit the training camp.

The contest is more than three weeks away, yet the crowds continue to grow daily.

WILLARD READY FOR DEMPSEY'S PLUNGING GAME SAYS ECKHARDT

(By JOHNNY ECKHARDT)

Famous Fistic Referee and Writer Jack Dempsey's rushing and plunging tactics which he employed to such excellent advantage against Fred Fulton and some of the other battlers over whom he crawled to his present prominent place in the fistic firmament, will do him little good in his coming battle with Jess Willard the champion.

Willard is wise to Dempsey's peculiar fire-cracker stunts, and Jess confided to me only the other day that nothing would please him better to have Dempsey rush at him as he rushed at Fred Fulton in their battle in Harrison Park, N. J., last July, when the writer was the third man in the ring.

"I hope Dempsey adopts the plunging style," said Jess with a knowing little twinkle in his eye, "for I have worked out a sounder method, not expecting a reply."

"That is it," replied the champ confidently, as he exhibited his brawny left paw and turned it gradually for a minute inspection.

We asked no more questions, for the size of that clenched fist was sufficient to give us a mental picture of the agony it could produce if it happened to connect. It was no surprise to us that Willard had worked out a counter move for Dempsey's rushes, for all of Dempsey's battle have been won with that driving style and Jess Willard has kept close tab on Mr. Dempsey.

Willard is not going to take any chance on the western lad producing something new. He frankly admits he is going to correct the method of the titleholder if it has been protected with hardened muscles.

Willard is not worrying about Dempsey connecting with his jaw. Since Willard started to train in earnest for his coming fight, he is giving more attention to the minor details of details of defense than he has ever given before. He laughs at the idea of Dempsey having a chance to beat him, yet he recognizes in Dempsey one of the greatest fighters of the aggressive type the game has had in recent years. Dempsey is chuck full of confidence too, but is not underestimating Jess.

BURMAN WILL TAKE ON SHARKEY, MONDAY

(By KID BIFF)

With rumors rife that champion Pate Herman is heading on his coasting tour with Joe Burman, Chicago, for the bantam crown, fight fans are wondering what will happen should Burman be able to put away Jack Sharkey, New York nudge, who recently boxed rings around Paul Moore, admittedly one of the real contenders for the Lilliputian title.

Burman had no trouble in defeating Johnson in their recent match, while Herman and Sharkey each have but draws to their credit to show for their matches with the same boxer. In all fairness, however, it must be stated that Burman's scrap with Johnson went five rounds more than either Herman's or Sharkey's and condition probably had a great deal to say as to the final result.

Burman and Sharkey are matched for the Auditorium, Monday night, under the auspices of the Cream City athletic club in a popular priced show. The bout will go ten rounds and three other matches will complete the card.

Matchmaker Tom Andrews, of the club, announces that the rumor that he is attempting to get Young Dennis and Otto Wallace together for the semi-finals is true. Wallace put Dennis away in seven rounds when they met before, but Dennis has improved wonderfully since that time and has learned to cover his stomach, his once vulnerable point. The third ward is looking for a rematch and it will be staged if the men can agree on terms.

SPORT SNAP-SHOTS

BY JACK KEENE.

Yale's football association is completing plans for the most extensive season on record. The preliminary organization has included the appointment of a new athletic director for the university, a director for the freshman class, the election of a new captain and training plans which include the calling of a squad of 120 two weeks before college opens in the fall.

Before the season reaches its height Yale men think that a squad of more than 400 will be in training and that probably a thousand undergraduates will play football this fall.

The new rule requiring students to take part in some branch of athletic sport has led to plans for the biggest squad on record in every branch of sport and to the construction of large numbers of new fields.

Usually only about fifty candidates report when training begins. This season double this number has been ordered out for the beginning of work two weeks before college begins. It is expected that this will be doubled as soon as the fall term opens and that the number will increase instead of decrease till the season closes. Class and other inter-unit games will be played throughout the season.

Dr. Albert Sharpe, the new director of athletics, will assume charge of the squad when it reports September 15. Herman E. Olcott, the new freshman director, will report at Yale at the same time. This position has been created largely because of Yale's freshman classes and departments in to a common group. A freshman dean will be appointed to take care of the class activities.

Olcott, who has been appointed permanent freshman director, has been director of the navy department commission on training camp activities for the Great Lakes navy station, the largest station in the world.

For the vacant Yale captaincy Tim Calahan, center and Carter Colt, guard, are the leading candidates. Artemas Gates, who was elected captain in 1916, returned to the college last March after a year and a half of military service. He has decided not to return to college next fall and to resign the captaincy of the eleven. His successor will be chosen June 14.

Ralph Perkins, one of the Athletics' catchers, used to backstop for Elmer Myers when the man who will pitch for the Indians when he gets out of the service, was down in the North Carolina league, with Raleigh, in 1915. That team was managed by Earl Mack, son of the Athletic leader, and it put in a very strenuous day on July 5 at Durham.

In the morning Raleigh had to go fourteen innings before the Bulls were roped, Myers pitching it.

In the afternoon there was no decision in twenty-one innings, a team having two runs when play stopped on account of darkness.

Perkins caught both these games—in fact he caught about every game Raleigh played in 1916.

Bill James, the Braves' righthander, may soon be taking a regular turn in the box for the Boston club. When the Robins piled up a big lead off Fillingim in Boston recently, George Stallings decided to experiment with James and the hurler showed flashes in his 1914 form. It was the first time he pitched for the Braves this season, and during the five and one-third innings he was found for six hits and two runs were scored off him. He retired Malone and Johnson on strikes, the latter fanning with a mate resting on third base.

Mrs. John A. Logan, widow of the famous American, has been awarded the Belgian medal for relief work in Washington, by Queen Elizabeth.
